French Prepare Ultimatum; May Play Lone Hand

Threatens to Oust Hitler From Rhine Unless Allies Act

France, Determined to Clear Rhineland Again, Sounds Warning

LOCARNO MEETING

Treaty-Signers Gather in London for World Fateful Conference

LONDON, Eng.—(Copyright Associated Press)—The French announced Thursday that, unmoved by the German threat to seek isolation, they would insist absolutely on the removal of German troops from the Rhineland.

The announcement came as delegates from the Locarno treaty signatories met to discuss the British plan, which informed sources said they believed sought a middle course in the present crisis.

A high source disclosed that France had drawn up a virtual ultimatum to the other Locarno signatories hinting single-handed action against Germany might be necessary if no agreement is reached in diplomatic discussions here.

Germany's Reply

BERLIN, Germany.—(P)—The German government declared Thursday that if any attempt should be made to demand of Germany that she renounce any of her sovereign rights, Hitler's peace efforts must be considered withdrawn.

Record U. S. War Budget

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The senate appropriations committee voted Thursday the largest peace-time fund in War Department history, 600 million dollars, including money to maintain the army at its full authorized strength of 185,000.

France Bluffing?

LONDON, Eng.—(P)—Great Britain, despite a reported French threat to quit the League of Nations, was believed set on a "middle-of-the-road" policy for talks over Germany's violation of the Locarno treaty. There were reports that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin would try to steady the situation.

The cabinet met in emergency session for a second time in eight hours Wednesday night.

The apparent British policy includes giving a hearing to Hitler's proposals for new peace pacts.

France's reported threat to quit the League of Nations apparently failed to impress diplomatic and official quarters in London.

"That's just bluff," said an important diplomat. "But there is no doubt France is desperately serious."

London fears that France, seeing no chance of punishing Germany collectively, might decide to do the job herself.

The Locarno conference, including representatives of Britain, France, Italy and Belgium, will meet in the old cabinet room of the Foreign Office.

Observers, checking off the membership of the League Council, agreed it would be deadlocked if called upon to rule between divergent Franco-British views, because both countries have several supporters in the Council.

The position of Italy, which may eventually be a key factor, was not disclosed. Reports reached London from Rome that Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador here who will represent Premier Mussolini, would adopt a passive position because of sanctions against Italy.

The New Deal After 3 Years: Impartial Review by Dutcher

Three years have elapsed between the taking of these pictures—three momentous years of a halting economic battle and the depression. Yet three arduous months in the White House appear to have made little mark upon the President-elect of 1933 (at left) and the President of 1936 (at right).

Unemployment Not Greatly Reduced; But Other Gains

Political, Social, Economic Attitude of Nation Improves

GHOST OF JOBLESS

It Haunts Administration—But Business Is Gradually Gaining

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Three years ago the New Deal entered in what soon became a blaze of glory.

On March 4, 1933, it was still riding high on a wave of popular enthusiasm which carried the Democratic party to an unprecedented victory in the congressional elections.

After two years it was obviously beginning to slow up and to decline in popular favor.

Today the New Deal is fighting for its life. Eight months from now Roosevelt will be re-elected or defeated.

Departing from this chronology of public opinion, it must be said that no one can yet accurately weigh the relative importance of the New Deal's failures and achievements. The Roosevelt regime stands damned by conservatives as too radical and by radicals as too conservative.

Unemployment Continues

The New Deal which the spongy New Dealers originally hoped to achieve doesn't exist. Opposition of business and financial interests, innumerable compromises, lack of good administrators, gross bungling of the NRA program, failures to foresee how important measures would work out, conflicts of advisers within the administration, frequent triumphs of timid politics over common honesty and some smashing Supreme Court majority opinions have produced a picture which today arouses more skepticism than enthusiasm. The New Dealers hoped to save the capitalist system from destruction and from repetition of the post-1929 depression by amputating some of its worst, most self-destructive features. Few of them feel they have succeeded in making the system safe for democracy as distinguished from fascism and socialism. Mild liberals of the Tagwell and Frankfurter types, though still retained as advisers by Roosevelt, are anathema to large groups.

The New Deal's biggest flop has been in its failure to reduce unemployment and restore purchasing power. For this the New Dealers primarily blame industrialists and financiers who have insisted on retaining the economic notions of the Old Deal and secondarily the misinterpretation and maladministration of NRA by General Hugh Johnson, who followed those notions instead of pressing for a program of increased production at lower prices which would necessarily involve sharing profits with workers in wages and with consumers through the lower prices.

The business men, however, that New Deal "meddling" and spending have retarded business recovery and increased unemployment. And again the trend to

A. B. Patten, Jr., Is Pneumonia Victim at the University

Hope Youth Succumbs at 20, in Infirmary at Fayetteville

FAMILY IS PRESENT

Funeral and Burial to Be Held in Old Home, Alexandria, La.

An attack of pneumonia caused the death at midnight Wednesday of A. B. Patten, Jr., popular Hope youth and a student at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville.

He died in the University infirmary at the age of 20. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Patten of Hope, had been at his bedside a week.

Born in Alexandria, La., young Patten came to Hope five years ago with his parents. He entered school here and was graduated from Hope High School.

Tribute From School

Informed of his death Thursday, Miss Beryl Henry, city superintendent of Hope schools, said:

"I regret deeply to learn of his death. He was one of the finest young men to ever attend school here. He was a brilliant student and possessed a splendid character."

Completing his course of study here, young Patten attended Draughn's Business college at Shreveport, later entered Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge and then matriculated at Centenary college at Shreveport.

He had been a student at the University of Arkansas the past two years where he was majoring in business administration.

Burial in Louisiana

His body will leave Fayetteville Thursday afternoon on a Missouri Pacific train for Alexandria where funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday from the home of his mother's sister, Mrs. O. G. Wilson, 1921 Polk street.

The Rev. Fred Harrison, pastor of First Methodist church of Hope, will conduct the funeral services. Burial will be at Alexandria.

Local Delegation Attends Democratic Meeting in Warren

Five members of the Hope unit, Arkansas Democratic Women's club, attended a Democratic women's meeting in Warren Wednesday. They were: Misses Ollie Sandifer, Dell McClanahan, Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp, Mrs. S. G. Norton and Mrs. A. C. Whitehurst.

Mrs. Lowthorp, chairman of the Hope unit, gave the welcome address. Following a morning session, luncheon was served at the Hotel Sutherland, 60 guests attending.

Miss Sandifer was elected chairman of a nominating committee, Miss McClanahan served on the courtesy committee and Mrs. Lowthorp was elected corresponding secretary of the Seventh District of the Arkansas women's club.

Z. T. Gibson Says He Has Poll Tax; Bodcaw Resident 30 Years

Election Contest Action Draws Fire From Still Another Person Named in Petition

The contestants were answered again Thursday in a signed statement mailed to The Star by Z. T. Gibson of the Patmos precinct. Mr. Gibson's statement:

"I see in the March 6th issue of The Star where Mr. Vesey filed action for Mr. O'Neal saying that 127 votes are illegal in the February 18 local option liquor election.

"It seems to me like there's a bug under a chip, and a negro in the woodpile, or something else wrong. I have lived for the past 30 years in the Bodcaw township and the biggest part of the last 63 years in Hempstead county and I have always paid my taxes.

"I have my tax receipt for 1934, dated County No. 23, February 19, 1935. I also have my receipt, County No. 63, February 22, 1936, in my hand.

"So I do not know what they are trying to throw my vote out for. They say that I am a non-resident of said precinct and that I belong in another precinct.

"Will you please put me wise to how long a man has to live in a township, county and state to become a citizen when he was born in the state of Arkansas in the year 1873.

"Now, as far as I know there is only one Gibson in Bodcaw township. Three or four years ago there was a negro in Bodcaw township and he spelled his name Will Gibson and he lived on Mr. C. C. McClellan's place.

"Now Bodcaw township has two voting precincts, one at Sardis and the other at Patmos and they are both about the same distance from my place."

"They have my initials a little wrong and I don't know who is the cause of it. I have always used both places to assess taxes, pay taxes and vote whenever it was convenient to me.

"I know what is the matter. They are trying to throw my vote out because I was on the other side of the house and if they throw my vote out I sure would like to have my dollar back with interest added.

"I wanted whisky to stay in town where they have the law to look after it and not out here in the country where there is no protection, for if they run whisky out of town it goes to the country.

"I can drink a little whisky if I want to—or I can leave it alone. And I nearly always prefer to leave it alone. Sometimes I go two or three years and never touch a drop of whisky without it is in some medicine I take, or in flavoring extracts in a cake.

"It was raised in a home where there was whisky all the time, but none of us hardly ever tasted whisky except when we had colds, then mother or father would make what they called a Ginger stew with a little whisky in it and gave it to us and told us to go to bed.

"If they throw my vote out and do not count it, I sure do want my dollar back and I will try to get it back.

Respectfully yours in this fight and other times, too,

Housing Clinic Is Scheduled Tuesday

John H. Page Calls Local Meeting at Hotel Barlow Next Week

A regional meeting of the Federal Housing administration will be held Tuesday night at Hotel Barlow, conducted by staff members of the Little Rock office.

The meeting is being called by John H. Page, field representative of the FHA. The meeting will be addressed by an out-of-town banker who has made large volumes of federal housing loans.

Following the Tuesday night meeting, a three-day clinic will be held and other representatives of the FHA office at Little Rock will be here to discuss personally with those who are interested by borrowing money to build new homes, modernize their present homes or to purchase homes.

Detailed workings of the federal housing administration and the national housing act will be explained to all persons interested.

Mr. Page urged the attendance of every business man in Hope and surrounding territory for the Tuesday night meeting.

The three-day clinic is open to all Hempstead county residents and persons living in Southwest Arkansas. Representatives of loaning institutions from Texarkana are expected here for the clinic, Mr. Page said.

Answer Filed in Contest Asserts Judge Is Partisan

Five Contest Signers Asserted Barred as Election Officials

PROHI STATEMENT

Basye, McRae, Boswell Deplore Charges—Will Not Withdraw

Developments in the liquor referendum contest Thursday were as follows:

1. The contestants filed their answer in Hempstead County court at Washington, asking County Judge H. M. Stephens disqualify himself to hear the contest March 30, "for the reason that he is a strong partisan of the contestants."

2. The contestants ask that the contest petition be dismissed because it is "not signed by as many as ten citizens and legal voters"; and because among the signers there are five election officials who, "if there was any fraud committed or illegal voting permitted in the voting precincts in which the foregoing election officials officiated, they were parties to said fraud and illegal voting, and therefore have no right, under the law, to sponsor a contest of their own illegal acts and conduct."

3. With two of the original 12 signatories of the contest petition having withdrawn Tuesday and Wednesday, reducing the number to 10, the minimum under the law, three more of the signatories issued a statement Thursday deploring accusations made in the petition but insisting it was not their desire to withdraw from the contest.

Statement From Three

Guy E. Basye, Dorsey McRae and L. M. Boswell, three of the 10 remaining contest petition signers, issued the following statement Thursday noon:

"We, the undersigned, who signed the papers instituting the contest of the Wet and Dry election wish to make the following statement.

"The papers were submitted to us late on the last day that they could be legally filed, and we did not have time to read them over. We understood, and still understand that there was sufficient illegal voting to justify a contest, and it is not our desire to stay the execution, which is set for the week of March 30.

Hauptmann's counsel clung to the idea that he still has a fighting chance if the governor will question Dr. Jaisie Condon.

Governor Refuses Bruno's Last Plea

Hoffman Unwilling to Make New Extension on the Final Day

TRENTON, N. J.—(P)—Governor Hoffman announced Thursday, the last day on which he can legally receive Bruno Richard Hauptmann, that he has no intention now of again staying the execution, which is set for the week of March 30.

Hauptmann's counsel clung to the idea that he still has a fighting chance if the governor will question Dr. Jaisie Condon.

Mrs. M'Williams, of Shover, Is Dead

Funeral Services to Be Held There at 2 o'Clock Friday

Mrs. J. W. McWilliams, 62, died early Thursday morning at her home in the Shover Springs community. She had been a resident of that vicinity the past 18 years.

Mrs. McWilliams was born and reared near Mt. Pleasant, Texas, later moving to Nevada county and thence to Shover Springs. She served as a correspondent for Hope Star several years.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday from the family residence at Shover with the Rev. T. L. Epton and the Rev. Will Erwin in charge. Burial will be at Shover.

Surviving are her husband, two brothers, W. A. Walker of Naples, Texas, and F. M. Walker of Naples, Texas. Six grand children also survive.

CHAPTER I
The young man said hastily, "I'm Sorry—"
His voice was low, pleasantly modulated. Toby noticed that, even before she noticed the broad, rough tweed shoulders, the hat brim dipping jauntily, the brown eyes.

Toby's gray-blue eyes met the brown ones. She said, "It's all right," and smiled in the way that brought the dimple into one cheek. Then she hurried on toward the employees' entrance of Bergman's department store.

"Shouldn't go whirling around corners," she reminded herself severely. "Bumping into people! Ought to look where you're going—"
And then Toby was at Bergman's and some of them singly were crowding through the doorway. Toby pushed inside, sighed involuntarily as her eyes met the time clock. She had made it, all right!

Meanwhile on the busy corner half a block away, the young man with the brown eyes and the jaunty hat brim watched her disappear. He could do this quite easily (though Toby was a little thing) because her cap-like hat was bright green. He watched until she was lost in the crowd before the doorway. Then he murmured, "Bergman's," half-aloud, eyeing the huge electric sign which swung from the top of the building almost half-way to the street. Smiling and leisurely, the young man walked to the curb and summoned a cab.

That is how Toby Ryan met Tim Jamieson. Not, of course, that they had really met. Brushing into a stranger during a Manhattan rush hour, making apologies and hurrying on is a common enough experience, quickly forgotten. But, afterward, Toby Ryan remembered the encounter and knew it was really the beginning of the whole thing.

She didn't know it that morning. Inside the big department store the day's routine had begun. Toby was "in the jewelry," which meant she sold pins, rings, bracelets, compacts—gray, brightly-colored baubles ranging in price from 29 cents for the imitation ivory bracelets to week only) glittering magnificently with six tiny diamonds on either side of the small oblong face.

The store stylist called these wares "junk jewelry," signifying that their intrinsic value was slight. Nevertheless the jewelry was an important department at Bergman's.

Toby, folding a denim counter cover, murmured, "Good morning," to Maurine Ball and moved aside in the narrow space behind the counter.

"Morning," answered Maurine who was also "in the jewelry." She added, "Lord, do I feel dead this morning!"

$79.50 for the "debutante watch" (special this "Party last night")

"Mmm—" Maurine moved a duster rather desultorily about the edges of the tray of Chinese charm pins. She put a hand to her mouth to stifle a yawn. "It was after four before I got to bed," she confided. "Seemed like I didn't any more than close my eyes before that alarm was ringing!"

Toby went to the other end of the counter to straighten the sign reading, "Handset Rhinestone Bracelets, $2.95 to $5." She wondered if Mr. Pharis, the good-looking buyer in the silverware department, two counters over, had been

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

While a person is suffering from acute infection, his diet should always be light. It should include preferably fluids, such as milk, and thin gruel. It should be rather low in proteins, also, to avoid possible irritation to the kidneys.

The greater the intensity of the disease, the more liquid the diet should be. It may include malted milk, and lemonade, orangeade, or oranges, to provide the alkaline effect.

Later, toasted bread, crackers, and various kinds of cereals may be added, and still later, baked potato, rice, corn starch, and many other cereal and milk foods, as well as a greater variety of fruit.

The diet in infection should always be modified to fit the patient. The main object is to avoid depriving him of an element that he requires to promote his health and to keep up his nutrition, and, at the same time, to avoid gastric and intestinal indigestion.

Doctors are often asked whether the patient may have coffee. Provided the blood pressure is not too high, the heart not too irritable, and the patient not too nervous and restless, it is a most unlikely procedure.

Today's Health Question
Q—Can you tell me whether a 30-day fast is possible, and whether it will cure gonorrhea? Is this a wise thing to do?
A—A 30-day fast is possible, but it is not likely to cure a gonorrhea. It is a most unlikely procedure.

coffee may be given him morning and noon or coffee in the morning and tea at noon or, if he desires, tea both times.

Coffee always should be considered as representing so much caffeine. When a person is sick, it should not be taken late in the afternoon or evening, as it may cause just sufficient stimulation to prevent sleep.

During fever, digestion is impaired. At the same time, because of the greater demands, there may be increased appetite. For this reason, long continued infections result in under-nutrition and loss of weight.

If a child is undernourished when the infection begins, it is likely to become seriously undernourished before the infection has progressed very long.

In children, infections of the ear and of the kidney, and occasionally tuberculosis, produce the worst effects in this direction. Under such circumstances, the child may need not only a quart of milk each day, but a diet rich in nutritional substances, to keep its weight and blood up to par.

If the forcing of fluids, necessary because of the infection, makes it difficult for the child to take the amount of milk recommended, the use of powdered milk, evaporated milk, or a similar preparation will serve the purpose.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

The new outlines of Elizabeth Bowen's main novel, "The House in Paris," come to the surface gradually as you read, like something rising slowly from the depths of a dark pool. The book has a faintly eerie atmosphere, and its catastrophe can be seen dimly from the beginning.

It opens with two children meeting in a house in Paris: an English girl on her way to visit her grandmother in the south of France, and a boy who is waiting to see his mother, from whom he was taken as a baby.

Bit by bit, as the story unfolds, we see back into this boy's antecedents—and come, at last, against a singularly real and comprehensible version of the age-old triangle story.

A French girl is in love with a young Jew. Her best chum is an English girl; the English girl and the Jew meet and fall suddenly, inflamably, in love. They are helpless in the grip of an emotion that can scarcely be called love; but it takes them off together on a week-end excursion, breaking the French girl's engagement, drives the Jew to suicide—and leaves the English girl with an illegitimate child.

It is this lad to whom we have been introduced at the beginning of the story; and it is this tragic atmosphere of heart-break and defeat which covers the narrative as it leads up to his reunion with his mother—creating a tension which rises slowly to an almost unbearable pitch and giving the novel an unforgettable climax.

I have been trying, clumsily, to say that this is a rather fine novel; deep, skillfully told, charged with somber emotion. I think you will like it. Published by Knopf, it sells for $2.50.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

While I realize that mothers cannot always call the doctor when someone in the family is ill, nevertheless I feel I shall have to go on urging the nothing of serious import be left to guess-work.

Not so long ago an outraged lady who took exception to my references to doctors in these columns wrote: "I'll put my children up against you any day, and I never had a doctor in my house."

I congratulated her. Either she is endowed with the best "guess" in the world, or her children are blessed with unusually good health. Or else they recovered from whatever illnesses they may have had because diagnosis was not necessary and general care and good nursing was all that was required.

However, it is one thing that I believe does not come under the wait-and-see category. This is earache. And this is a perfectly swell time of year for Old Man Earache to go visiting.

Certainly every mother learns to depend on herself. She knows that when Johnny's stomach refuses to retain a meal, he must go on thin diet or none until his stomach rests. But if he repeats it several times, develops a temperature and so on, the experienced one knows that there is the end of her responsibility. Such symptoms may mean the beginning of one of a dozen things of serious nature. The same with feverish colds, coughs or sore throats that refuse to improve with early home treatment.

There is one thing that I believe does not come under the wait-and-see category. This is earache. And this is a perfectly swell time of year for Old Man Earache to go visiting.

While I always hate to play the role of Calamity Jane and spy out imaginary Indians on the horizon, this time I feel constrained to say my piece. While some earache will get along nicely with home treatment and Johnny may be back at school the day after tomorrow, still and all he mightn't. There is an Indian by the name of Mastoiditis that never has been located. He is an expert shot with his bow and arrow, and it is funny how he loves to hit behind the ear in that vulnerable place so close to the brain. Earache is merely a signal that he isn't any too far away—the warning to keep an eye peeled for possible trouble.

March a Bad Month
A baby can't tell us when he has earache. But he will cry and turn his head or hunch his shoulders. Perhaps he will touch his head. If the mother is reasonably certain it is ear trouble, I suggest she get professional opinion.

Also, if older Johnny or Mary has toothache of the ear (did you ever have one?) and it isn't well by morning, or recurs frequently, I'd make a bet with someone who knows. Early treatment may rout the enemy completely. Late assistance may mean the hospital and a pretty bad operation. Mastoid disease usually must be operated on at once.

Best of all, however, is to guard against ear infection. Keep ears covered through windy March, particularly if they have been covered all winter. It is to early to let them sprout. See that night air does not blow right over unprotected heads. Of course head colds affect ears, but this is something we can scarcely control. Teach children to blow noses gently. Hard blowing forces germ-laden mucus up the throat-tubes into the middle ear.

as required by paragraph 2, of Section 14, of Article 7 of Act 108 of the General Assembly of 1935.

2. That said petition for contest is signed by five election officials of said election, to-wit: Dorsey McRae, judge in Ward 1, Hope; T. A. Middlebrooks, judge in Ward 2, Hope; Guy E. Bayse, clerk in Ward 1, Hope; E. E. Austin, judge in Ward 3, Hope; and E. P. O'Neal, judge in Box 5, Hope.

That said petition charges misconduct and illegal voting in Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, and in Box 5; that if any fraud was committed or illegal voting permitted in the voting precincts in which the foregoing election officials officiated, they were parties to said fraud and illegal voting, and therefore have no right, under the law, to sponsor a contest of their own illegal acts; and conduct; and their signatures to said petition for contest do not meet the requirements contemplated in paragraph 2, of Section 14, of Article 7 of Act 108 of the General Assembly of 1935.

WHEREFORE, they pray that all names of parties signing said petition for contest who are not qualified electors and the names of all said election officials signing said petition be stricken from the same, and that said petition be dismissed for want of jurisdiction on the part of the court to determine the same.

N. P. O'NEAL, et al Contestants vs.
JETT WILLIAMS, et al Contestees

Answers of Contestees

Now come the undersigned citizens and qualified electors of Hempstead County, being more than ten (10) in number, and without waiving their right to present their motion for disqualification of the County Judge, their motion for bond for costs, and their motion for dismissal of contestants' petition, submit this as their answer to contestant's petition, and allege and say:

Contestees deny each and every material allegation of the petition of contestants.

Contestees admit that the election commissioners of Hempstead County, on February 24, 1936, certified in a certificate filed with the County Clerk of Hempstead County, Arkansas, that in a special election held under said Act 108 of the Acts of 1935 of the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, on the 18th day of February, 1936, in Hempstead County, Arkansas, that 896 votes were cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and that 887 votes were cast, "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas." But they deny that said certificate is erroneous in that said certificate shows that a majority of the legal votes cast in said election were cast "For Sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," in Hempstead County, Arkansas.

Contestees further deny that the following illegal and fraudulent votes were cast in various wards and precincts in said election "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas." Contestees further deny that contestants are unable to specify the name of each illegal and fraudulent vote by name and number, and contestees deny that this honorable court should compare the names of the voters who voted in said election at the above named boxes with the list of qualified voters made and filed by the collector for the year 1934, and that the names of all persons who do not appear to have paid poll tax for the said year 1934 and who voted in said election at the boxes above set out be eliminated and stricken from the vote in favor of "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and contestees deny that the non-residents voting in each of said wards and precincts should be stricken from the vote cast and returns in said ward and precinct and deny that this court should purge the election returns of said alleged illegal and fraudulent votes herein and make a just, true and correct finding of the legal votes cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

Contestees further deny that the judges of said election in the McNab Box certified that 24 votes were cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and no votes cast "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and they deny that the judges at judges knowingly, wilfully and corruptly permitted and induced minors to vote in said polling place "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," they deny that said judges, knowingly and corruptly permitted and induced non-residents of the state, county, township and precinct to vote "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," they deny that said judges permitted outsiders to remain in and around the booths during the time the electors were voting; they deny that only one judge prepared the ballots for the persons who could not read and write instead of having same prepared by two judges, as the law directs; they admit that a total of 39 votes were cast at said precinct of Sardis in said election, but deny that of said 39 votes 22 of said total 39 votes were cast by persons who had no poll tax as the law requires.

That said election judges permitted and induced said persons to cast said illegal votes; they deny that 14 of said votes were cast by persons who did not reside in said voting precinct; they deny that said judges permitted and induced said persons to cast said votes; they deny that 3 minors were permitted by said judges to cast their ballots in said precinct. They deny that all of said ballots above set out cast in said precinct illegally were cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," contestees deny that the conduct of the said judges and other election officials in said Sardis precinct at said election was so corrupt, unfair and reprehensible that no faith and credit could or should be given to the votes cast therein, and the same should be thrown out and rejected; and deny that if said 39 votes cast at said precinct be thrown out and deducted from the total as certified in said certificate should show 857 votes "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

Contestees further deny that the following illegal and fraudulent votes were cast in various wards and precincts in said election "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas." Contestees further deny that contestants are unable to specify the name of each illegal and fraudulent vote by name and number, and contestees deny that this honorable court should compare the names of the voters who voted in said election at the above named boxes with the list of qualified voters made and filed by the collector for the year 1934, and that the names of all persons who do not appear to have paid poll tax for the said year 1934 and who voted in said election at the boxes above set out be eliminated and stricken from the vote in favor of "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and contestees deny that the non-residents voting in each of said wards and precincts should be stricken from the vote cast and returns in said ward and precinct and deny that this court should purge the election returns of said alleged illegal and fraudulent votes herein and make a just, true and correct finding of the legal votes cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

Contestees further deny that all of the above alleged illegal votes were cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and deny that said alleged illegal votes were counted by the election officials and included in the said certificate filed with the County Clerk and deny that each and every one of said alleged illegal votes should be thrown out for the reason that each of said persons casting said illegal votes either had failed to assess, knowingly and corruptly permitted and induced non-residents of the state, county, township and precinct to vote "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and deny that said alleged illegal votes were counted by the election officials and included in the said certificate filed with the County Clerk as having voted "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and deny that if this be done the returns of said election would show that 769 were cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and 887 votes were cast "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," to-wit:

Contestants further deny that all of said alleged illegal votes should be thrown out, and if that be done that a majority of the legal votes cast in said election "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale and retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," Contestees further deny that contestants are unable to specify the name of each illegal and fraudulent vote by name and number, and contestees deny that this honorable court should compare the names of the voters who voted in said election at the above named boxes with the list of qualified voters made and filed by the collector for the year 1934, and that the names of all persons who do not appear to have paid poll tax for the said year 1934 and who voted in said election at the boxes above set out be eliminated and stricken from the vote in favor of "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and contestees deny that the non-residents voting in each of said wards and precincts should be stricken from the vote cast and returns in said ward and precinct and deny that this court should purge the election returns of said alleged illegal and fraudulent votes herein and make a just, true and correct finding of the legal votes cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

Contestees further deny that the judges of said election in the McNab Box certified that 24 votes were cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and no votes cast "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and they deny that the judges at said precinct corruptly and falsely changed said ballots so as to show said electors voting "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and contestees deny that this honorable court should or has a right to open said ballot box and correctly count said votes and that all votes cast "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," be counted that way, and deny that the returns in said ward should be purged so as to show the true and correct number of votes cast "For sale, barter and loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas," and "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

Contestees further deny that the certificate of the election commissioners certifying to the result of the said special election should be cancelled, set aside and held for naught; and deny that a finding should be made by this court that a majority of the qualified electors voting at the said election on the 18th day of February, 1936, "Against sale, barter or loan, at wholesale or retail, of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

Contestees, for further answer to contestants' petition, allege the truth to be that if any illegal votes were cast in the various wards and precincts at said election, as alleged by contestants, that all of said votes were cast "Against the sale of spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, in Hempstead County, Arkansas."

Wherefore, contestees pray that contestants' petition be dismissed, and for all other proper relief, but if the Court, upon a hearing of contestants' allegations should find, from the evidence on behalf of the contestants that such fraud and illegal voting occurred in the various wards and precincts challenged by contestants, that the votes in said wards and precincts should be purged, then contestees allege that all of the ballots cast at said election in all of the various wards and precincts against the sale of liquor should be set aside, and that a majority of the legal votes cast in said election were for the sale of spirituous, vinous and malt liquor in all things valid and reflects the true results of said election in Hempstead County.

Wherefore, contestees pray that contestants' petition be dismissed, and for all other proper relief, but if the Court, upon a hearing of contestants' allegations should find, from the evidence on behalf of the contestants that such fraud and illegal voting occurred in the various wards and precincts challenged by contestants, that the votes in said wards and precincts should be purged, then contestees allege that all of the ballots cast at said election in all of the various wards and precincts against the sale of liquor should be set aside, and that a majority of the legal votes cast in said election were for the sale of spirituous, vinous and malt liquor in all things valid and reflects the true results of said election in Hempstead County.

Contestees further allege that they have not had access to the poll books of said election and have had no opportunity to procure a list of the parties who voted at said election and therefore cannot specifically name each illegal vote cast against the sale of liquor at said election, but they have been informed and believe, and therefore charge that many persons voted in the various wards and precincts against the sale of liquor who were not qualified voters and not qualified to vote at said wards and precincts.

Columbus Box
Contestees have been informed and believe, and therefore charge that 39 persons voted at the Columbus Box in Saline Township against the sale of liquor who failed to sign their names to the duplicate ballots, as the law directs; that numerous persons voted at said box against the sale of liquor who did not reside in said precinct and township and were not entitled to vote there; and numerous persons voted at said box against the sale of liquor who had paid no poll tax, entitling them to vote at said election.

Contestees further allege that the persons who delivered the election

The Happy Distances

How beautiful and beckoning and far
Those shining vistas are;
The happy distances that lie
Along the trail's end, blue against the sky;
Abode of silver wings, wings, and the keenly thinned
Light laughter of the wind!
The happy distances,
Forever leading on Down every road that I have ever known,
Down every road that I shall ever go;
Once with youth's fever in my blood
I sought
To reach them, now I know
The wisdom of the plan
That keeps some beauty from the heart of man,
And sets it racing over hill and hollow,
For eyes to feast upon—for feet to follow—Selected.

Della, a student in Hendrix college.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Carter and little daughter, have returned to their home in Monroe, La., after a visit with Mrs. M. H. Barlow and Mrs. Elizabeth Pritchard.

Among the many delightful social affairs that are being given in honor of Miss Geneva Higginson, a popular bride-elect of this month, was the attractive bridge party given on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. H. C. Whitworth and Mrs. W. L. Miller at the home of the latter on South Main street. A color scheme of green honoring Erin's Saint was beautifully developed in the decorations, bridge literature and refreshments and the
"it" wrappings. Bridge was played from four tables, with the favors going to Mrs. Bob Morris and Mrs.
Oliver Williams. The honoree was presented with a dainty gift. Following a series of games, the hostesses assisted by Mrs. R. D. Franklin served a delicious ice course with cake.

The Ladies Auxiliary of Garrett Memorial church met in regular monthly business and social session on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs.
Mike Ponder on North Hamilton street. The home was bright and attractive with lovely spring flowers and following a short business session, conducted by the president, Mrs. Ohio Odell, a splendid program was given after which a delightful ice course was served to fourteen members.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Black have as house guest this week, Mrs. R. D. Pil-and Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Williams left
Thursday morning for Fort Worth, Texas, where they will attend the Fat Stock Show. En route they will visit in Dallas and Sherman, Texas.

Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp has returned from Warren, Ark., where she made the response to the welcoming address at a meeting of the Democratic Women of the seventh district. Mrs.
Lowthorp was elected as recording secretary of the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Yates are spending a few days on a business trip to Marshall, Texas.

Mrs. Frank Lowthorp and little son, Jim Gorin, of Clarksville, Ark., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Cox have returned from a few days visit in Menphis, Tenn.

Litany will be read at St. Luke's Episcopal church at 4 o'clock, Friday afternoon.

Lon Sanders, Hope grocery store
owner, returned home late Wednesday from a 5-week's stay in Barnes hospital at St. Louis.

Moore to Meet Baltran in Wrestling Revival at Fair Park

Top Photo—Henry Kohn
Bottom—Pete Baltran.

Hope wrestling fans are promised a good card at Fair Park arena Thursday night in the season's first mat program. A large crowd is expected.

In the feature event, (Handsome Jack) Moore of Powhatan, Ark., will meet Pete Baltran, powerful Bohemian. Both are light heavyweights.

Moore has established a good reputation in recent ring encounters at Little Rock. Wednesday night he scored a two-fall victory over (Wild Red) Berry in the main event there.

Moore is a graduate of the Farmer
Barnes school of wrestling and specializes in the "Irish Whip."

A substitution has been made in the semi-final event. Leslie Wolff, originally scheduled to meet Henry Kohn, will not appear because of an ailing ankle that was injured in a bout at Springfield, Mo., last week.

A telegram received Thursday morning from Tony Bernardi, Little Rock match-maker, said that Walter Miller would be sent here in place of Wolff.

All four wrestlers will be making their first appearance in a Hope ring.
Promoter Bert Mauldin announced that Bill Summerville, former Henderson State Teachers college football star, would do the officiating. The show starts at 8 p. m.

Bleacher seats are on sale at 25 cents. Ringside seats will sell at 40 cents.

Brother of Mrs. J. L. Ted-der Drops Dead in Station at Malvern

Clarence Jobe, 65, brother of Mrs.
J. L. Tedder, 1520 South Main street, dropped dead at 3:15 p. m. Wednesday at the Missouri Pacific depot in Malvern.

Mr. Jobe had bought a ticket for Pine Bluff and was waiting for a bus.
Dr. W. G. Hodges of Malvern, who investigated, attributed his death to a heart attack.

Mr. Jobe had made his home in Hope for the past two years. Previous to then he had been a resident of Little Rock 40 years.

Funeral services were held at 3 p. m.
Thursday at Rose Hill cemetery, conducted by the Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, pastor of First Baptist church.

Surviving are five brothers, Ed Jobe
of Little Rock, Charlie Jobe of North Little Rock, Pryer Jobe of Blue Island,
Ill.; Ernest Jobe of Oklahoma; Gillie
Jobe of Texarkana, and one sister,
Mrs. J. L. Tedder of Hope.

The New Deal

concentration of wealth has been resumed.

Improving Business Bizarre as it may seem, these are among the most important political facts of the New Deal's era in the house in this campaign is the fact that "business is getting better." 2. Chief factor in Roosevelt's decline in pres-tice is the practically unanimous opo-sition of the nation's most influential class—big business men and financiers who have profited most in the last three years. Their opposition is largely due to the administration's stand for collective bargaining with union labor, its relief and work relief policies—which affect the issue of budget-balancing and the question of "soak-the-rich" taxation, to which the New Deal is tacitly committed—and the act calling for dissolution of the public utility holding companies such as Insull and Hopyson made famous.

Because Roosevelt has made strong appeals to the middle and lower groups on the economic scale and because he has not hesitated to play ball with the most unsavory elements in the Democratic party when it seemed expedient, there is no compelling reason for belief that he will not be re-elected, assuming that the subsequent breaks aren't strongly against him.

The Republican party, despite widespread anti-New Deal reaction, has failed to produce as yet a candidate or an issue arousing general enthusiasm.
Its outstanding candidate for nomination, Governor Landon of Kansas, has thus far espoused as a chief issue
only the reform of relief administration.

Court Blocks Changes
The New Deal's effort to do a lot of reforming of social procedures in respect to industry and agriculture, which would enable the nation to handle its national problems on a national basis. New Dealers who insist that basic changes were needed admit that no basic changes, but only a few reforms and changes of attitude, have been achieved. The largest corporations soon became the staunchest defenders of "state rights" and a majority of Supreme Court justices demonstrated in the A. A. decision that national industrial planning through co-operation of industry and the federal government would be impossible as long as that majority remained on the bench. Pet plans of New Dealers for a machinery which could head off the next big industrial crash have been squashed.

Many bright promises, such as that of low cost housing for low income groups, have not been fulfilled.

Roosevelt's persistent optimism that he could balance the budget has failed of fulfillment and that a national argument which appeals to millions of voters, though he insists that budget-balancing can be had for next year—
if you don't count the billions for relief.

Outstanding among all New Deal failures was that of NRA under General Johnson. Hope of fundamental devices for working out increased industrial production through federal stimulation faded as production control, price-fixing and low wages were officially approved. NRA was never brought in line with AAA, so that food prices rose ahead of employment and purchasing power, and there could be no inter-play between the two big recovery agencies. NRA was dead before the Supreme Court struck at it in the Schechter case and Roosevelt wasn't loath to let the matter drop.
There were many factors in that. The Johnson and Donald Reiberg are still trying to explain them.

Third Party Looms Changes of attitude, for better or worse, are among the New Deal's in-tangible accomplishments. Encouragement of labor organization and recognition of labor's rights, though one of big industry's great bugbears, has changed the political and economic outlook. Operation of a "liberal" administration, in one way and another, has speeded what is now almost the certain organization of a third, radical party in 1940.

People probably have been brought closer to the government than ever before. One reason is the important admission by government that it is a federal responsibility to see that its citizens have subsistence. It is usually conceded that the imperfect, poorly planned relief efforts have been better than none at all.

More especially: whether or not the New Deal had anything to do with it, index figures show that industrial production has increased from 63 in 1932 to 88 in 1935, employment from 64 to 82 and payrolls from 46 to 78.
And under the AAA farm income rose from $4,377,000,000 to $6,900,000,000.
The new soil conservation-production control program has great possibilities and its success will depend on the excellence of its administration. Millions

Gasoline Tax Over 8 Million in '35

State Speaker Addresses
Hempstead Oil Dealers
Association Here

Arkansas' collection of gasoline taxes for 1935 amounted to $8,200,000, W. F.
Scarborough, secretary of the Oil Dealers' association of Arkansas, told members of the Hempstead County Oil Dealers association at the New Capital hotel Wednesday night.

Since the gasoline tax law was enacted in 1921, Arkansas motorists have paid a total of $66,787,479 in gasoline taxes, the speaker asserted.

Attending the meeting, were approximately 50 oil dealers and filling station operators in Southwest Arkansas. A Dutch supper and the election of new officers provided part of the program.

Mr. Scarborough, principal speaker, said in part:

"We have no desire to escape contributing our rightful share to the support of government. Mr. Scarborough said, "but when we are brought face to face with figures as staggering as these, will pull up to a sudden halt. We begin to wonder where we are heading. We realize that something must be done.

"There is a tendency on the part of motorists to protest a 1c increase in the price of gasoline." Mr. Scarborough said, "while the majority of them continue to overlook a gasoline tax which is the equivalent of a sales tax of 52 per cent on the retail price."

Declaring that the time has come when the motorist must be made "tax conscious," Mr. Scarborough pointed out that the oil marketer is in the key position to educate the public in matters of taxation, since one-fourth of the population of the United States visits filling stations every week.

"Today the service station is the focal point in its community," Mr.
Scarborough said. "Where is there a better place than the filling station to tell the consumer that, if it were not for excessive taxes, gasoline would be cheaper? I have often thought that if filling station attendants would shout as loudly about gasoline taxes as storekeepers do about sales taxes, the gasoline tax story might be a different one," he declared.

of farms and other homes have been saved for their owners by New Deal loans.

WPA has put 3,500,000 persons at work and it is well to remember that the billions spent through FERA, PWA, CWA and other spending agencies on dole, work relief, public works and so on have served, according to many economists, to keep industry on the upgrade.

Through the Resettlement Administration a feeble beginning has been made toward tackling the problem of misplaced populations—stranded by many causes, including technological unemployment. Large strides in conservation have been made through the CCC, the withdrawal of public lands from homesteading, purchases by Resettlement of 10,000,000 acres and by the Forest Service of a few million more for forests and parks and in the harvesting of water power by many dams over the country. Thus far the Supreme Court has spared that great experiment known as TVA.

The Social Security Act, branded by one side as too radical and by the other as inadequate and perhaps yet to be held unconstitutional—is an important new chapter in American social history. The Wagner labor disputes act undertakes to guarantee labor rights and, like the Guffey act to rehabilitate the coal industry, is now tied up in the courts.

Other failures and other achievements could be mentioned if there were space. In November each voter must decide for himself whether this great melange is entitled to a vote of confidence or should be discarded in favor of whatever the anti-New Dealers offer.

Japanese Troops Push on to West

Their Manchoukuoan Allies Seize Capital of Inner Mongolia

SHANGHAI, China. — (P) — Motorized Manchoukuoan troops pushed Japan's wedge of influence 200 miles closer to Russia Tuesday, said Chinese newspaper dispatches.

The Manchoukuoans seized the ancient city of Pailingmiao, capital of Chinese Inner Mongolia.

Japanese Advance

SHANGHAI, China. — (P) — Chinese press reports said Tuesday a small detachment of Manchoukuoan troops had seized Pailingmiao, capital of Chinese Inner Mongolia, extending Japan's sphere of influence between Soviet Russia and China proper 200 miles farther westward.

The Manchoukuoans were commanded by Gen. La Shoh-Sin and were reported to have come in motor trucks, from Changpei, in Northern Chahar province of China.

Inner Mongolian troops were reported on January 19 to have taken control of Changpei and to have set up a Mongolian regime friendly to Manchoukuo, Japanese-sponsored state.

Pailingmiao, site of a huge Mongol lamasery, is 150 miles north of Kwei-hua, in Suiyuan province of China. It is the key point on the caravan route from China into Central Asia.

Taxing of Federal Bonds Likely Next

Senator Byrd Revives It After Roosevelt's Message

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt's long-awaited tax message, to congress, in which he recommended sweeping changes and revision in present policies, prompted members of congress to dust off his message on the same subject delivered last June.

A recommendation he made then promises to figure prominently in all discussions as to ways and means of supplying the huge sum demanded by the President in the present instance.

Last June Mr. Roosevelt recommended "submission and ratification of a constitutional amendment whereby the federal government will be permitted to tax the income on subsequently issued state and local securities and likewise for the taxation by state and local governments of future issues of federal securities."

One of the staunchest supporters of the move to tax government securities is the soft-spoken, smiling Senator Byrd of Virginia. Already chairman of a senate committee studying reorganization of the government with the view to either co-ordinating or abolishing agencies and bureaus, Byrd is prepared to lead the fight.

Byrd Takes Action

"Any real reform in the tax system," he says, "must be based upon taxation of tax exempt securities. Without such taxation those best able to pay will escape."

Within a few days after the President made his tax recommendation last June, Byrd introduced two bills in the senate to carry it out.

The first, allowing subsequently issued federal securities to be taxed by the federal government and by state, local and territorial taxing authorities, is before the finance committee of which he is a member.

His joint resolution for the necessary constitutional amendment is in the senate judiciary committee.

He has moved to have them sprung from committee in time for consideration along with the President's tax proposals.

Cites Figures

Byrd has marshaled imposing statistics in support of his stand. He figures that every two dollars the federal government spends, one dollar and ten cents is added to the public debt. In other words, he says the federal government is spending $13,000 every minute, day and night, including Sundays.

He estimates that in every one of these minutes, $7,000 of financing is being done by selling tax exempt government bonds.

"The result is, we are not only increasing the public debt at this astounding rate but providing a tax refuge for the well-to-do to receive interest from the government and escape burdens of taxation," he asserts.

Back Yard GARDENING on a Budget.

This is the fifth of a series of articles on gardening by budget. By PROF. C. H. NISSLEY, Extension Horticulturist, N. J. College of Agriculture and Experiment Station, Rutgers University

The more time you spend in the garden, the greater will be your return. There is always something to do in the garden; the season does not end until the ground freezes over.

First plan your garden on paper, drawing it to scale if possible. With the aid of best experience, a good seed catalog or a garden bulletin from your state agricultural college you will have a lot of satisfaction in planning your garden, deciding on the varieties, distances of planting and continuation of successive cropping, so that your full garden may be as valuable, if not more so, than your spring or midsummer garden.

Cultivation is very important, not only in keeping down weeds, which compete with vegetables, but also in keeping the soil loose, and allowing air to gain access to the roots. Cultivate the garden fairly deeply, but guard against cutting off feeding roots.

Insects must be controlled. The most effective material to use for insects which eat the leaves, or are located above ground, is a pyrethrum dust or liquid spray. Pyrethrum is not poisonous to human beings.

During prolonged dry weather, ir-

Celery requires plenty of water. If you don't irrigate them well you will get plants like those shown at right, in contrast to the well-fed stalks at left.

igation is very beneficial. Water in the soil is necessary to dissolve the nutrients and make them available for plant use. Without moisture plants cannot grow.

Mulching the garden soil is recommended. A mulch is nothing more than a covering over the ground. It may consist of straw, manure, silt hay, reed grass, or even paper.

The mulch allows moisture to reach the plants during rainstorms and retards evaporation. It will discourage weeds and keep tomatoes, peppers, and eggplants clean. Greater yields can be expected from mulched plants.

crops which may be stored during the winter either in the outdoor pit or in the storage cellar.

Have a compost box four feet square and about four feet high, made of planks. During the year, grass clippings, leaves and other rubbish from the garden may be thrown into this

The tomato fruit worm also attacks sweet corn and cotton. The only way to combat these pests is to watch for them constantly, hand-pick and kill them.

compost box, and considerable organic matter may be saved to use either in the ground or as a mulch the following year.

NEXT—Flower gardening.

Famous G-Man Corners Dodge Economy

By MELVIN PURVIS, Former Act of Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Dept. of Justice

One of the most surprising discoveries I've made is the way my new 1936 Dodge saves money!

It gives me 19 to 20 miles to the gallon of gas consistently in city driving and as high as 22 miles out in the country.

At the same time, this Dodge certainly saves on oil. Excepting for regular changes, I've hardly add no oil at all.

at Maurine's party. Mr. Pharis was new in the store. His uncle was on the board of directors and Mr. Pharis, after graduating from a famous university, had traveled all over Europe. Toby had learned this from Maurine who had "been out" with the young silverware buyer.

"She can have him," Toby thought carelessly. Maurine had been late this morning, as usual. Gladys Sorenson, the third girl at the counter, insisted Maurine had a pull with Miss Burrows. The buyer. Toby didn't think that. She thought Gladys, who was older than the others and whose figure could be described only by the word "dumpy," said such things because Maurine was an out-and-out beauty. Employees who didn't know her referred to Maurine as "that pretty girl in the jewelry."

She had an arresting brunet beauty that eclipsed her surroundings. Inevitably drew attention to itself. Working at the same counter as Maurine, it was no wonder Toby Ryan went unnoticed. Yet Toby was well worth noticing. Gray blue eyes beneath curving brows—nose with a bit of a tilt—generous lips, healthy crimson—a chin that was practically perfect. That was Toby Ryan. Her hair was light brown or deep golden, depending on whether or not you saw her in the sunlight. She stood five feet three in her trim pumps, wore size 12 shoes—and wore them with an air.

quickly. Toby wasn't the sort to talk much about herself, didn't ask other girls to go home with her for dinner, or suggest "double dates."

TRUTH to tell, behind the counters at Bergman's there was little opportunity to talk. The first floor was always a hive. All day long a steady stream of shoppers poured through the broad center aisles—men, women and children; some obviously wealthy, others pathetically shabby; some buying extravagantly, others "just looking."

Toby, finishing a day behind the counter—particularly a sale day—almost always felt ready to drop. Yet she loved it. She liked working at Bergman's; it was the best place she had ever worked. Toby, at 19, had been an independent wage earner for almost two years. Ever since the aunt with whom she had lived in Jackson Heights had died.

Toby had had to leave high school then, a month before graduation. She had been lucky about finding work—as an extra sales girl during the Easter rush. Since then she had worked at a telephone switchboard; at a five and ten store, selling electrical supplies; operating an elevator; demonstrating a wavy lotion (her own hair curled naturally); and trying—with disheartening results—to interest unseen telephone customers in the merits of a new line of automobile tires.

Now she was at Bergman's, by far the best place of all. Toby thought that if a girl worked hard in a place like Bergman's she could hope for advancement some day—become assistant buyer, or even (and why not?) a buyer. Toby was ambitious; she wanted a better job.

She couldn't ask the other girls to go home with her because home was a tiny single room on the third floor, rear, of a rather unpleasant house. The house stood on an unpleasant street, too. There was a single window, a studio couch—rather badly worn, three chairs, a table that failed to stand squarely on its four legs, and a gas stove on which to make coffee and fry chops. The bath was down the hall, shared with other roomers on the floor. The remarkable thing about the room was that the rent was only $4.50 a week.

Toby received $15 every Saturday at Bergman's. Subtracting $4.50 for room rent left $11.50 for food, clothing, carfare, and the innumerable incidentals that were always popping up. Toby managed, but it required careful planning.

GLADYS SORENSON, holding up a string of 19-cent pearls for a customer to examine, caught Toby's eye and nodded significantly. Toby followed the nod, saw Maurine at the end of the counter. Maurine was resting a ruby-tipped hand against her cheek as she smiled at Mr. Pharis, on the opposite side of the counter. Apparently what Maurine had to say, or what the young man was saying, was important. A woman with a small child in tow had paused impatiently nearby, but Maurine did not notice her.

Toby hastened toward the customer. "Is there anything I can show you, Madam?"

"Well," the woman said sharply. "You might show me a little attention, if it's not too much trouble. Or aren't you girls paid for that? I've been standing here for five minutes, trying to get someone to wait on me—"

It hadn't been five minutes and Toby knew it, but she said quickly. "I'm sorry. What was it—?"

"Oh!" The woman glared at her, then seemed to remember that she had come to the store to make a purchase. She opened her purse took out a small turquoise pin and said, "Here—have you any earrings to match that?"

"I think so," Toby said. The earrings are over here, Madam—"

But by the time Toby had selected three pairs of earrings exactly matching the pin, the prospective customer decided she did not have time to make a choice, and departed.

Toby, putting the tray of earrings back into place, saw Miss Burrows, the jewelry buyer, approaching. Miss Collins from the advertising department was with her.

They were almost beside her before Toby noticed the man with them. He wore a trench coat and his brown felt hat was jammed on rather carelessly. The three halted and Miss Burrows said, raising her voice a trifle. "Oh, Maurine!"

Maurine Ball answered quickly. "Yes, Miss Burrows!"

"Maurine, you're to go to the third floor with Miss Collins. They're making a photograph to advertise the new Beauty Bar, and the model who was supposed to be in the picture has sprained her ankle. I've told Miss Collins we can spare you for a little while."

MAURINE'S party. Mr. Pharis was new in the store. His uncle was on the board of directors and Mr. Pharis, after graduating from a famous university, had traveled all over Europe. Toby had learned this from Maurine who had "been out" with the young silverware buyer.

Seizure of Private Records Forbidden

Court Rebuffs Senate, Indicating a Prolonged Controversy

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Supreme Court of the District of Columbia Wednesday rebuffed the senate lobby committee with a preliminary injunction—overstepping the limitations of the constitution.

It ruled that subpoenas issued by the committee for all telegrams sent and received by Winston, Strawn and Shaw, Chicago law firm, between February 1 and December 1 of last year constituted "unreasonable search and seizure" in violation of the Fourth amendment to the constitution.

"Feeling as I do, that this subpoena goes away beyond any legitimate exercise of the right of the subpoena duces tecum," said Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat. "I think I am bound to grant the injunction as prayed for."

The injunction had been asked by Silas Strawn, a member of the Chicago firm, influential Republican, and former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who charged that the committee was conducting a "fishing expedition" against opponents of the New Deal in demanding that Western Union produce the telegrams.

The decision was announced even before attorneys had completed their argument. It was a spectacular conflict between the senate and the courts.

Chairman Black, Democrat, Alabama, who had threatened to seek legislation restricting the jurisdiction of any court which presumed to lift the senate's investigating rights, said the committee would "go over the briefs which the judge did not seem to have time to read" before deciding upon a course of action.

"It's my judgment," he said, "that the senate will not submit to an unconstitutional restraint of its own constitutional functions. The committee will proceed with its work as it has done."

Express Highways to Cut Accidents

Elevated Roads, Free of Intersections, Are Cheapest Solution

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—(AP)—Express highways, permitting speeds greater than 40 miles an hour, alone will relieve cities of traffic congestion, studies by the Harvard Bureau for Street and Traffic Research show.

The bureau has found that such highways, free from all intersections and built usually as elevated roadways, will eliminate the causes of 72 per cent of fatal accidents.

In most cases the express highways would cost less than widening streets to carry the same volume of traffic.

Dr. Miller McClintock, director of the bureau, said the time that commercial vehicles would have on express highways alone would justify their cost.

Surface Roads Inadequate

Pointing to the need for drastic innovations in street construction, Dr. McClintock said:

"No type of improvement or surface routes nor control of traffic over them can materially speed up traffic in urban areas."

The Harvard traffic bureau, established in 1925, seeks to reduce congestion and accidents, for it has found that as congestion is relieved, accidents diminish.

Next fall it will offer two graduate courses in the principles and problems of street and highway traffic control. Money donated by the Automobile Manufacturers' association has enabled the bureau to offer 15 graduate fellowships.

Students of Experience

Those receiving fellowships must be college graduates, and most of them will have had experience in police departments, motor vehicle bureaus, highway departments and city engineering offices.

Each student will study a specific traffic problem as a research assignment. Of each fellowship, $200 will be for traveling expenses, permitting research in various parts of the country.

Previous research has taken bureau investigators to Chicago, New York, Kansas City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Washington and Boston.

Over Million in Liquor, Beer Taxes

State's Revenue $207,639 for First Two Months of 1936

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Revenue derived by the state from license fees and taxes on liquor, beer and native wine in the first two months of 1936 totaled $207,639.76, Earl R. Wiseman, state revenue commissioner, reported Wednesday. That afforded highly favorable comparison with the total of $386,551.42 for the entire year of 1935.

The total liquor revenue from the time it was legalized, March 22, 1935, through February, 1936, was $864,084.59. During the 14 months since January 1, 1935, beer has brought in $217,187.09 and since February 21, 1935, native wine has added $12,919.50 for a grand total of $1,094,191.16. Expenses of collection last year were $48,669.71 and those for the past two months have not been allocated.

Of the liquor revenue the first $500,000 goes to the general fund, the second $500,000 to old age pensions if such funds exist and if not to the state charities fund. Anything in excess of $1,000,000 goes to the common school fund.

Beer revenue distribution is as follows: Common school fund, 70 per cent; Arkansas Service Bureau, two per cent; Confederate pension fund, 12 per cent; county tuberculosis funds, 10 per cent; Arkansas Children's Home, one per cent; State Board of Health and Bureau of Vital Statistics, five per cent.

All proceeds from native wine are designated for the old age pension fund.

U. S. Allocation of Road Fund, Error

Government Ought to Obtain Complete Control, Says Futrell

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Federal allocations to the states for highway construction were described as "a mistake" by Governor Futrell Thursday.

The governor said a better plan would be for the expenditure of federal money to be under direct jurisdiction of the government.

The governor charged in a formal statement that "local influence" had caused roads to be built in Arkansas in the past that were not needed.

He commented:

"If the government had planned a system of international highways, local influence would not likely have interfered with their location and construction."

Miniature Subway Carries Freight

Chicago's Tiny Electric System One of Strangest in World

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Traffic is almost as congested 42 feet below State and Madison streets as it is on the surface of one of the world's busiest corners.

The subterranean traffic problem is created by 62 miles of tunnels constituting one of the world's most amazing railroads which operates almost unknown to those above.

The tubes, six feet wide and seven-and-a-half feet high through which freight is hauled on 3,000 miniature cars pulled by 150 electric locomotives, weave a complex jag-saw puzzle that passes 60 feet below the bed of the Chicago river a dozen times.

Package freight, including everything from cosmetics to salad dressing, is delivered to department stores through the tunnels.

News dispatches from the city news bureau are "shot" to the editorial rooms of the daily papers by air compression through pipes in the tunnels.

In summer cool air from the tunnels, where the temperature is more or less constant at 55 degrees, the year around, is pumped to operate air conditioning units in theaters, hotels and stores.

Built more than 30 years ago at a cost of $30,000,000 the system is owned and operated by the Chicago Tunnel company.

There are approximately 100,000 automobiles in Mexico today.

OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO — "IT'S TOASTED"

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS.

PROPER AGING

Tobacco in its natural state is harsh and strong. Though "cured" by the grower before sale, it is unsuited for use without further aging. During this aging period (which ranges in the case of Lucky Strike from 1½ to 3 years) important changes occur. These "Nature" changes result in the partial "smoothing out" of the original harsh qualities of the leaf. Our process of manufacture carries these improvements many steps further—as every Lucky Strike Cigarette exemplifies: A Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco.

LUCKIES ARE LESS ACID!
Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.
